Letters to the Editor

Dear Community,

On behalf of all the staff at the elementary school, I would like to say Kommol Tata to the community members who supported our students' recent efforts to raise money for tsunami victims. With this overwhelming support, we were able to send $12,491.07 to the American Red Cross International Response Fund. We feel this was an important event for the children to undertake as it reinforced the knowledge that there are people that need our help, and that all of us have a powerful voice when we work together. It was refreshing to see the enthusiasm in which the students donated their time to "litter patrol" here on Kwaj and also in collecting their pledges. This experience went a long way to introducing our students to the benefits of their active participation in the global community.

Sincerely,
Sonya F. Sava
"Wave of Relief" Coordinator

Wedding Bells

Former Kwajalein resident Dan Hillman married Nancy Moll on Jan. 1 in Lancaster, Pennsylvania. The couple got engaged Christmas Eve (2003) on Emon Beach. Many out of towners attended the wedding including Dan's relatives from Rome and also some very good friends from Kwajalein. Dan's sister, Sandy Hillman (1998 Kwajalein High School graduate and currently a teacher on Kwajalein) was maid of honor, and Dan's brother, Jamie Hillman (born on Kwajalein in 1986 and 2004 Kwajalein High School graduate), was best man. Ushers were Dan's youngest brother, Michael Hillman (born on Kwajalein in 1990 and currently in eighth grade on Kwajalein) and Nancy's brother, Ryan Moll. The couple took a short honeymoon and is now living in Newport News, Virginia where Dan is teaching high school mathematics and physics and Nancy is attending William and Mary College working on her doctorate in history.

Shop 'till you drop

Simple rules can get residents vendors licenses

By Nell M. Drumheller
Editor

At first glance, shopping on Kwajalein may appear to be limited to the downtown area with the Macys' stores, Ten-ten and on the fringes, the Mic Shop and Bargain Bazaar. In reality, there's a lot more for sale than what's displayed on the shelves of these stores.

More than 60 people have licenses to conduct commercial activities in this community, according to Simone Smead, Community Activities manager.

The vendors offer sales and services in a wide-range of areas – everything from pottery to scuba lessons, to day spas and dance lessons.

In a community of less than 2,300, that is quite a variety for the person with coins in their pocket ready to spend.

Before you can become a legal vendor of goods or services in the U.S. Army Kwajalein and Reagan Test Site community, you must meet minimum criteria and of course, fill out some forms. There's also a $25 licensing fee.

Vendors may only sell or provide services for the specific items approved on the license, and only for the duration of the license period. The licenses are non-transferable, even if the business is sold, transferred or given to another individual. The new vendor must apply for a license.

Vendors whose services include activities that may be dangerous, such as swimming or scuba lessons, are required to have proof of liability insurance and must comply with any applicable and active Republic of the Marshall Islands dive guidelines.

Vendors who sell shell craft items may not use endangered species of marine life, and vendors who wish to sell locally caught fish may only sell commonly accepted ocean-going fish such as wahoo, ono, kava kava, rainbow runner, mahi mahi, tuna and marlin and will exclude reef-feeders such as perch, surgeon fish, lally fish, trigger fish, squirrel fish, wrasse, snapper, red snapper, parrot fish and barracuda.

Food vendors must attend a briefing with the Kwajalein Range Services Food Safety office to learn proper food handling and sanitation methods.

Vendors are forbidden from using government media to promote goods or services, which means that vendors cannot advertise on the roller, in the Hourglass, via government computer or by posting flyers at the post office.

However, vendors may post flyers and advertisements on bulletin boards at the Tape Escape, Small Boat Marina, Community Recreation Center, Library, Gimbel's, Café Roi, Outrigger Bar, Ivey Gym and Roi terminal.

When a vendor completes the paperwork for a license to conduct commercial activities in USAKA, they are advised in writing as to what they can and can't do.

One point of confusion with some vendors is shipping of goods for resale. It is prohibited to use the Army Post Office for shipping of goods for resale.

"If you are going to sell the product, you can't use the post office to send or receive your goods," Karla Long,

Licensed vendors sell items including food, art, crafts, T-shirts and more at events such as the Spring MusicFest, Fourth of July celebration and other community activities. (File photo) postmistress said.

She added that while she cannot open your packages to see what is in them, some contents are obvious by the shipping label and packaging and so when she sees boxes that appear to be in violation of the regulations, she notifies the receiver. "I give them a warning that what they are doing is against government regulations," she said. She is within the jurisdiction of her office to return the packages unreceived if they are blatantly in violation of the regulations.

Legally, the only way for vendors to ship and receive product for resale is through Republic of Marshall Islands' mail or by commercial air service.

Not all services require a license to conduct commercial activities. If you are a child-care provider, are holding a quarters-based patio or permanent change of station sale or are holding a fund-raiser for an approved private organization or club, you do not need this specific license.

For more information on becoming a vendor, or to see a current list of active vendors, stop by the Community Activities Office in Bldg. 805 or call 53331.

Kwajalein residents make a difference by working on Ebeye

By Mig Owens
Assistant Editor

For a handful of Kwajalein residents, their workplace isn't worlds away – it only seems as if it is. Those who choose to apply their skills on Ebeye reap untold rewards.

Leigh Willhelm, who holds a doctorate in counseling and is an experienced mental health counselor, boards a water taxi three days a week to serve as a social work consultant to the Ministry of Health. Other days, she works from home.

"I've been on Kwaj for almost two years and this is my first job since we've been here," she said. "I had done some volunteer reading at Ebeye Public School and heard they were looking for a social worker."

According to Maj. David Coffey, Host Nation chief, such word-of-mouth advertising is typical of job openings on Ebeye, though some are posted in the Hourglass. He explained that no special permission or paperwork is required through his office for Kwajalein residents to work on Ebeye.

"Their wage level is such that most professionals will not go work there, but for someone trying to give back to the community, there are a lot of volunteer and low-wage jobs," Coffey said.

Maryanne Lane, Host Nation officer, added "while teachers and medical personnel certainly don't make what they make here, they make considerably more than a Marshallese hired on Ebeye."

The position that Willhelm has filled for the past three months allows for a degree of flexibility and fits perfectly into her schedule, she explained, allowing her to be home when her children get out of school.

"I truly enjoy my job on Ebeye. My coworkers have been amazingly gracious to me," she said. "I feel blessed with the opportunity to do something meaningful with my time plus I have the benefit of getting a unique work experience."

Marta Geeslin has been a Kwajalein resident for four years and is a substitute at Ebeye Public Elementary School, where she teaches grammar, phonics, reading and spelling to eighth graders.

"I've always enjoyed teaching and babies," Geeslin, who is also a pediatric nurse, said. Amidst overcrowding and a backdrop of too-few books, cockroaches and lack of air-conditioning and running water in the classroom she added, "I find it rewarding, especially when you see your students succeed."

Leigh Willhelm interacts with kindergartners as she sets up a room for play therapy at Ebeye Public Elementary School.

Her experience as a Montessori teacher has enabled Geeslin to work with special education/needs students who are mixed in with her regular classes. Her biggest challenge, though, is behavior, which she said is true of eighth graders everywhere.

She recounted an instance where some of her students surprised her in scoring 100 percent on a quiz. Geeslin said she thought to herself, "wait a minute...it looks like I'm doing something good here."

Knowledge of the culture is something Geeslin obtained through adoption of her Marshallese son, Carlos, and it has given her insight in her current position. "These are wonderful people and very intelligent," Geeslin said. "With good training, they can do anything."

Of her own experience, Willhelm said she has gained "a greater appreciation for the fact that Kwaj is their land, we're just visitors here." She added that the military's presence has changed many things for the Marshallese people, both good and bad.

"I think we have a responsibility to treat the Marshallese people with dignity and to respect their culture," Willhelm said. "As a 'ribelle' on Ebeye, I am mindful that I am the foreigner here, not them."

A.J. Gilbert is in the process of transitioning from a teacher at Ebeye Public Elementary School to a volunteer position, after accepting a job with the Kwajalein Police Department. In his opinion, the greatest educational concern for the people on Ebeye is English proficiency.

Though working on Ebeye requires a long commute, Gilbert, also an eighth-grade English teacher, shared that he enjoys it because "the people and culture embrace life in ways others forget." Of the greatest impact to Gilbert, he said, is "seeing the socioeconomic problems and wanting to do more."

Through her work at Ebeye Hospital, Willhelm has gained insight into health concerns of the people living there, citing diabetes and communicable diseases as the greatest health issues.

"The youth population has the typical problems of alcohol abuse and high teenage pregnancy rates. The age group of 20 and under accounts for over half of the population on Ebeye," Willhelm said.

Willhelm, Geeslin and Gilbert exemplify the difference one person can make. But, more help is needed and welcome, according to Host Nation officials.

"They are always looking for volunteer teachers and medical personnel," Coffey said. Lane added that more recently, hospitals and schools prefer hiring people as they can set up firm schedules versus volunteers who don't always show up.

"There is strong need for recreational activities and expanded educational opportunities," Willhelm explained. "Presently there is a group of women from Kwaj who volunteer at one of the private schools on Ebeye. If someone was interested in helping, they could get involved by reading at the schools or sponsoring a sports team from Ebeye."

According to Lane, the Ebeye Public School and High School are in dire need, though all schools are always looking for steady teachers.

Though the pay is lower than equivalent jobs on Kwajalein, Coffey said he thinks people choose to work there out of "a desire to give back and a belief that money isn't all that is important."

Range operation scheduled for Sunday

A range operation is scheduled for Sunday. Caution times are from 2:01 p.m. through 11:16 p.m. in conjunction with this operation. A caution area will exist within the Kwajalein Atoll. The caution area is bounded on the north by Boked Island on the east reef and Yabbernohr Island on the west reef. On the south, the area is bounded by a line drawn north of Bigej Island on the east reef to a point at latitude 08 54.2N, longitude 167 45.8E, then to a point at latitude 08 52.8N, longitude 167 45.8E, and then to a point north of the high tide mark on Ninni Island on the west reef. Bigej Island and the water surrounding Bigej are off limits for this mission. An additional caution area extending from the Kwajalein atoll north into the broad ocean area is defined in the map below.

In order to ensure clearance of non-mission support personnel from the mid-atoll corridor by the window opening time, Kwajalein Police Department island clearance procedures will begin at approximately 7:30 a.m. on Thursday and continue until evacuation has been accomplished. Egress of all air and sea craft will be required when requested by authorized clearance personnel. Subsequent to lagoon clearance, the hazard area will be in effect until mission completion.

In conjunction with this operation, a Kwajalein met rocket is scheduled as soon as possible after the launch from Meck Island on Sunday. The caution areas are identified on maps below.

In the event of a mission slip, the caution times and areas will be in effect:

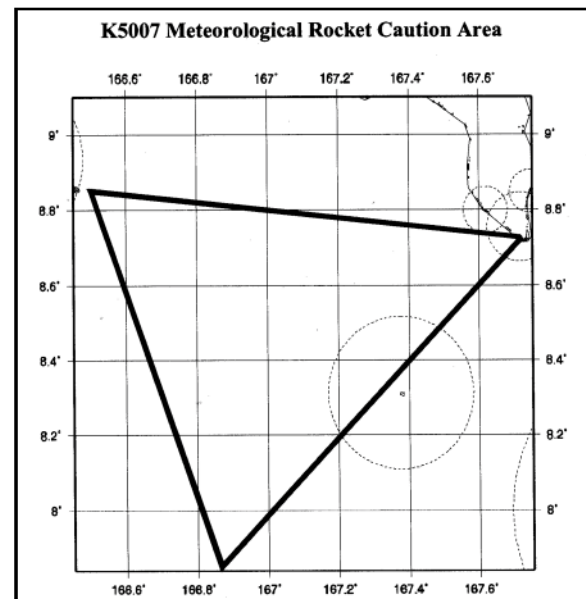

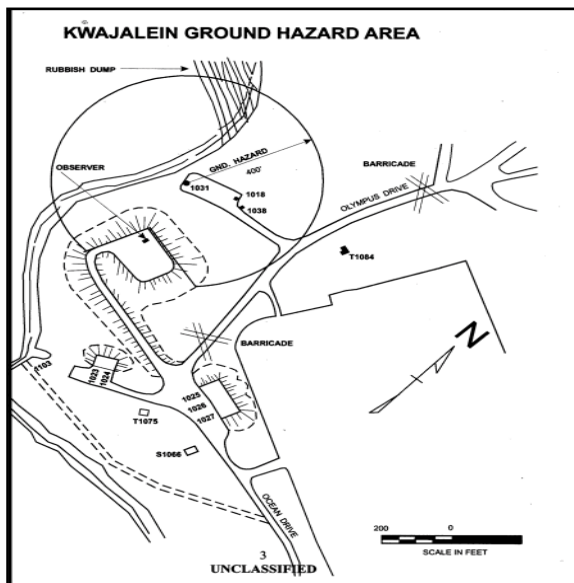

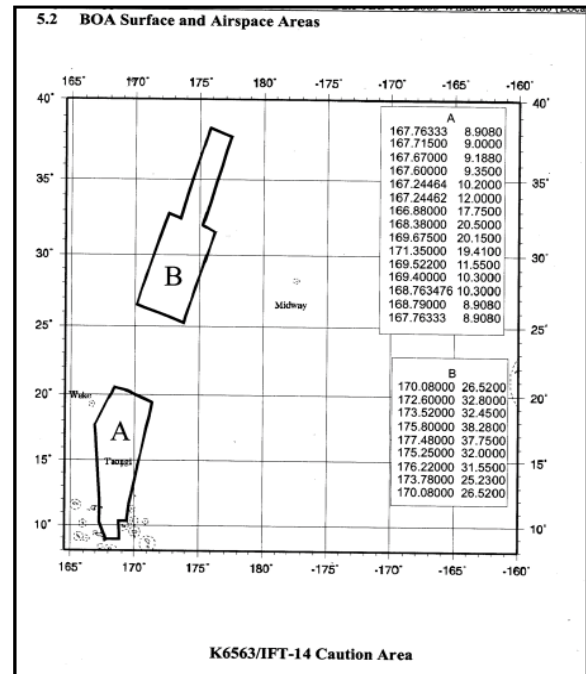

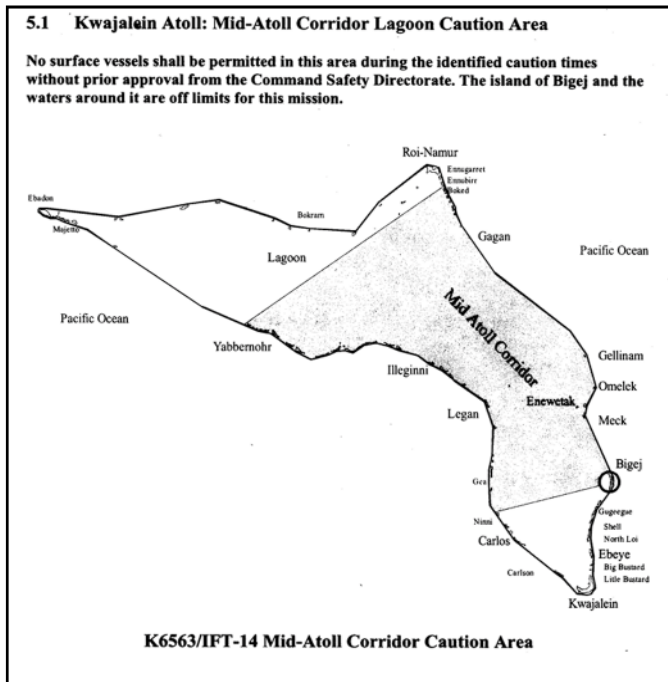

2:01 – 11:16 p.m., Monday

2:01 – 11:16 p.m., Tuesday

2:01 – 11:16 p.m., Feb. 16

2:01 – 11:16 p.m., Feb. 17

Questions regarding safety requirements for the mission should be directed to the Command Safety Office, Range Safety officer at 51910.

All AFN programming is subject to change due to DS3 availability.

Flashy arrival

Metroliner struck by lightning, requires repairs

By Mig Owens
Assistant Editor

On landing the island's newest Metroliner Feb. 2, pilots delivering the airplane reported that they saw a flash during the flight, about halfway from Honolulu to Kwajalein. Unaffected and undaunted, they continued in the air for the last four hours of the nine-hour trip.

A subsequent inspection uncovered a series of eight "exit wounds" or burn marks on the body of the plane, as well as chips in the left propeller, flap and tail wing, according to Leonard Lollar, AirScan Pacific program manager.

The airplane, estimated to be worth $600,000, sustained damage determined by AirScan officials to be caused by a lightning strike.

Though physically able to fly, Federal Aviation Administration regulations require the airplane's propeller and engine be replaced, said Bill Givens, AirScan director of maintenance. Rework of the sheet metal will also be necessary, as well as maintenance to radar equipment.

Under normal circumstances, a Metroliner plane would require engine replacement after 3,000 hours of operation, according to Givens. "Eighteen hours is all this one has," he said.

"It's unfortunate, but it's part of being in aviation," Givens said, adding that he has seen instances of lightning striking planes about once every two years, though none with any type of catastrophic results.

"The way we fly here, with so many cycles, it wears airplanes out," Lollar said. "It's tough to keep two going in this environment. We were looking forward to a third plane, especially the air conditioning. Now, it may be many weeks before this one flies. AirScan has insurance for this type of thing. They're involved and will work on it."

Lollar said that AirScan is sending a fourth plane here in the interim, which will allow Plane 680 to be sent to Honolulu for refurbishment, repainting, air conditioning and anti-corrosion treatment, as scheduled.

Though not yet permitted to hit the skies, Lollar said the new Metroliner's arrival has proven beneficial in an unexpected way.

"We began borrowing parts from it right away," Lollar said, explaining that parts from the new arrival have enabled them to repair discrepancies in the other two planes.

Following repair, the Metroliner 697 is expected to join Planes 680 and 691, used primarily for commutes between Kwajalein and Roi-Namur.
